SURRENDER OF BELGIAN TROOPS BREAKS BACK OF ALLIED ARMY

British To Fight On, Churchill Tells Commons. NAZIS ADVANCE.

LONDON (AP)—Great Britain and her gravely endangered army in Flanders were pledged today by Winston Churchill to fight Nazi Germany's might to the last ditch, through disaster and grief, despite the capitulation of King Leopold of Belgium and perhaps half a million of his fighting men.

Neutral military observers expected the entire British Army in Belgium and Northern France, with its left flank exposed to the German attack by the Belgian army, would try to fight its way southward through the German iron corridor to the French front in the Alps.

Chiefs of "shunt" echoed through the deep walls of the House of Commons as Prime Minister Churchill told of Leopold's capitulation. Cheers roared to the rafters when he said the British and French would fight on despite the King's action that the Belgian Government had in effect deposited arms and the Allies would continue to defend the world cause.

Although naval spokesmen admitted that the German withdrawal of the British Army by sea from Belgium was under consideration, neutral observers were of the opinion that such an operation, under the overwhelming punishment of the German Air Force at Channel ports, would produce more casualties than the desperate fight southward.

FRANCE BITTER. PARIS (AP)—The Belgian Army's surrender, announced today by the Germans, today under orders from King Leopold III, breaking the back of the allied armies of the north and bringing the battle of France to its culminating point.

That blow was as heavy as the collapse of the army of General Andre Corap in the battle of the Meuse May 15, which permitted the German breakthrough through France to the English Channel. The French and British remnants of General Blanchard's northern army carried on the Flanders front, the military spokesman acknowledged their resistance was "extremely difficult."

The outcome of the war now turns on the central front along the Somme and the Aisne Rivers and down the Main Maggot Line defenses.

TODAY'S WAR MAP—Belgium's surrender to the Germans has left the Allied forces in the North in an "extremely precarious" position, the British admit. The French channel port, Dunkerque (1), from which the Allies are getting much-needed supplies, is now exposed to the enemy on the North. The German Army has advanced to within six miles of Bruges (2) and is now moving toward the coast. The German Air Force is bombing the Allied positions. The map shows the German advance from the north and east, and the Allied positions in the North and West.

Nazi "Crush-Through" Overwhelms Enemy. REYNAUD BITTER.

A Nazi infantry "crush-through" overwhelmed Allied lines today following the surrender of the Belgian Army by King Leopold and reduced the encircled Flanders pocket by half.

The British Cabinet debated the chances of withdrawing the Expeditionary Force from Belgium but experts agreed it would be a deadly undertaking, requiring protection by the Navy and Air Force, and subject to probably constant air bombardment. The Germans said the British Broadcasting Company and the Belgian forces on May 10 numbered 200,000. The Germans said between 40,000 and 50,000 men had been taken prisoner, but some French sources said only 200,000 Belgians were left in the pocket.

A French spokesman acknowledged that resistance by some 600,000 Allied troops in "cauldrons" is now "extremely difficult." The Germans said the resistance was being broken by bombing planes.

Cowham Issues Permits For $44,600 Construction In Unincorporated Area

BUILDING SPURT SEEN

Four new rest homes are being built in the unincorporated section of the Town of Mamaroneck, it was learned today when a check was made of building permits issued during May by the three municipalities here.

Permits issued by Joseph Cowham, Town building inspector, called for a total construction cost of $44,600, including the four new homes and six alterations. There was no new construction, however, in the Villages of Mamaroneck and Larchmont.

Three of the houses are being built by Gerard J. Campbell of Larchmont, an investment.

They are being built on Danle Drive, all in the Maple Hill section. Each will cost $10,000, and will contain seven rooms and two baths.

The other new home is to be built by H. J. Kennedy on Rock Ridge Road and will cost $6,000. It will be a five room dwelling with a stone roof.

The six alterations reported by Cowham were of a minor nature, with the exception of a $12,000 addition to the home of George S. Elliott at 4 Echo Lane.

Alterations, signs and similar work were estimated at $2,000 in the Village of Mamaroneck, Building Inspector George D. Forchuck reported.

The death last yesterday of Mrs. Anna Kurlach, 36, of the Bronx, made the Hutchinson River Parkway Memorial Day collision the most deadly motor vehicle crash in Westchester in nearly six years, but 1940 fatalities to date continue the downward trend for the third year.

The toll of ten dead in May, while the highest in seven months, was one below last May's.

The triple car highway collision in Barchester Thursday brought death to more persons in a single crash in Westchester than has been killed in July, 1934. The Bronx driver also was killed, when he crossed over the center white line and struck the 15 year old son and a 2 year old neighbor's girl.

The 1940 automobile toll stands at 31 at the end of five months, compared with 40 at the same stage in 1939, 40 in 1938, and 41 in 1934.

SOMME FIGHT ON

WAR SUMMARY

BRITISH the Somme trap turned into confusion for Nazis with 20,000 dead; 10,000 British, all but one division, 30,000 French, Belgian and Dutch saved; heavy losses down to Nazi planes over Dunkerque today with one British craft lost.

FRENCH push Germans back across Somme, secure bridgeheads at Amiens and hold against several counterattacks; decide not to renew trade pact with Italy.

GERMAN Command announced French resistance in northeastern France broken; 26,000 French prisoners taken in pocket around Lille almost all remnants of 23rd corps removed in three French armies completely surrounded; British division left behind between Calais and Dover once annihilated.

Allied ships continued taking soldiers who fought their way out of the Flanders death trap from Dunkerque and adjacent beaches today and France took the next step to breaking off relations with Italy by announcing decision not to renew trade pact with Mussolini.

The move announced in Paris was seen based on opinion amounting to certainty that Italy would be in the war as an enemy of England today, as the Nazis referred to the trap had been broken.

All but one division of the British Expeditionary Force of 175,000 men had been taken from Northern France by this morning. The most heavy loss of all divisions including side-swept river boats and sailing boats, which offer poor targets to German bombers but which with anti-aircraft guns continued the desperate task of evacuating more French and Belgian troops who escaped the clutches of the Nazis.

The jaws of death were held back by flood waters and a heroic rearguard action by the remnants of the British division of 15,000 under Vice Count Gort who remained with his troops, and the remnants of three British armies. The Germans said Gort's division was annihilated near Calais, apparently unable to reach the coast through the protective flood waters.

French had surrendered in one pocket south of Lille. About 50,000 French soldiers reached England and two more divisions which fought through the gauntlet were reported at Dunkerque. The British said the evacuation of the Somme retreat formation: A solid square of thousands of men pressed on the sides by several columns. One Belgian division was reported still fighting with the trapped Allies, under the command of long-reigning Liege.

Flames held off yesterday by a heavy fog again assailed the troops evacuated at Dunkerque today. The British said the evacuation of the Somme retreat formation: A solid square of thousands of men pressed on the sides by several columns. One Belgian division was reported still fighting with the trapped Allies, under the command of long-reigning Liege.

FRENCH TROOPS LEAVE PARIS; BELLIGERENTS ORDERED OUT OF CHINA

Allies Continue To Battle Nazis Near Capital

BRITISH TRAPPED

PARIS (AP)—The defense line in the battle for France is holding, a military spokesman declared today—holding under the heavy strain of new German divisions which have been combined with the old to make a total of 120 (about 1,800,000 men) striving to break the French.

The spokesman said that while the French would continue the defense, they would not be able to hold out for long.

Paris was described as "open city" to spare it from the devastation of battle.

The French have no intention of fighting to Paris itself.

Japan Demands Removal Of Armed Forces From China; French Capital Becomes 'Open City' As Allies Decide Not To Fight In Streets

Japan chose the hour when the German Army was at the gates of Paris to demand that all armed forces of the European belligerents be withdrawn from China.

The strongest German Army rested at Beaumont, 17 miles from Paris and 15 miles from suburban St. Denis on the north, while a new German drive was in progress to the east to outflank the main Maginot Line. A spearhead which had flicked five miles down the Beaumont Road was wiped out by a counter attack early today, the French said.

There was a report the French had sent the officers of United States Ambassador William B. E. to send word to Berlin that all troops and forces must be withdrawn from China.
