Stone neighborhood opposition to a renewed attempt by the owners to develop the former Maurice property on the East Post Road adjoining the Methodist Church Parsonage was pressed last night at a public hearing by the Mamaroneck Zoning Board of Appeals.

The board also heard a plea for permission to move a house to Alling and Grand Streets, which met some opposition, and proposed applications to construct a kitchen, to build a new garage, and to erect a gasoline station. No decisions were reached, and action on all five cases is slated for March 15.

The proposed development of the Post Road property calls for a professional building with six second-floor apartments on the Post Road frontage, extending to a depth of 100 feet for business, and the construction of two two-story apartment buildings on the Tompkins Avenue frontage to house 32 families.

At a hearing more than a year ago, an application for a variance to permit the construction of a four-story building to be occupied by A&P was approved, but with 17 conditions which caused the food company to decide against the location.

One condition that caused the A&P rejection was requirement for a six-foot brick wall across the Tompkins Avenue frontage, extending a distance of 50 feet along both sidelines. John L. Dellus, attorney for Berrozio...

Virginia Mann, forty-two, of 2 Montross Street, was given three stitches in her head at St. George's Hospital last night after she was struck from behind by an unidentified assailant.

Miss Mann told police she thought the assailant was a Negro, about five feet, seven inches tall and that he was wearing light khaki trousers.

She said she heard snuffing noises behind her, she started to walk faster. At Montross Street, she directly tied up with herby and the head by what seemed like a metal pipe, she said.

Three men directly involved in the activities of the New York waterfront last night agreed that troubles along the vast stretch of New York and New Jersey piers were not entirely due to union activities. They spoke at a public hearing held by Larchmont Council, Knights of Columbus, at St. Augustine's Auditorium, Larchmont, last night.

Introduced by John K. Carroll, grand knight, the Rev. John M. Corridan, the noted waterfront priest, William B. Mischo, general counsel for the international Longshoremen's Union, and Godfrey P. Schmidt, chairman of the Citizens Committee on the Waterfront, said unsavory practices by law enforcement agencies and other corrupt practices alleged against the waterfront.

First to speak, Father Corridan said that he had been "a classic example of racketeering in the labor union," there had been "passive partners in business and law."

Father Corridan, speaking for the individual longshoremen, who he said is "nearly per cent Catholic" and "nearly per cent Irish" union is "bitterly none at all for the men."

Notes on applications before the Village of Mamaroneck Zoning Board of Appeals hereafter will be taken in open session, Conrad H. Henne, chairman, announced last night after hearing the first of five cases.

The action arose out of a decision by Judge Christ in Supreme court at Minerva, L. I., that the Governor's veto in executive sessions are not binding.

Because of the effect this decision might have on previous zoning decisions where such actions have been taken, a bill was introduced this week in the New York State Legislature to legalize all past decisions of zoning boards where the votes were not counted in executive sessions.

The Mamaroneck Board will continue its policy of holding executive sessions from which all persons, including the press, are barred. However, Mr. Henne stated, no votes will be taken during those sessions.

The next open meeting, at which the first of such votes will be taken, will be held March 15, 8 P.M. Mr. Henne stated, will be held at such meetings.

Senate Bill Approved 47 to 6; Governor Expected To Sign Measure

ALBANY (AP)—The Senate today voted final legislative approval of the compulsory automobile insurance bill. The vote was 47-6.

Governor Harriman is expected to sign the measure, which was approved by the Assembly, 123 to 24, last week.

This means that no car may be registered in the state next year without first being insured.

There are approximately 700,000 registered automobiles in the state.

The Senate also approved, 43-10, a substitute plan for "pool" compulsory insurance, but this was merely a gesture. There appeared no chance of its gaining Assembly approval.

The Assembly will refer the bill to its Finance Committee.

Both measures sailed through without debate.

After the passage of the bill, the Republican-dominated Senate turned through a GOP program meant to reduce state income taxes by $40 million this year.

The Assembly also set to work on a bill to increase state aid to education by $89.6 million a year.
