Not Even A Scratch

Robert Cohen, of Mamaroneck, a member of the 563rd Field Artillery Battalion, Army of Occupation, will have at least one hair rattle "no story to tell" when he returns to the States, a story that actually happened. Cohen was studying enemy trench lines from his observation post in the second story of a battered house when the screen of the window German soldier pierced the air when Cohen turned to the door, before he could take a step, a deafening roar shook the building. Clothing that fell from plaster and shattered bricks filled the room. Stunned from the blast and gasping for breath, Cohen staggered to his feet and took cover. Miraculously, he had not even been scratched, although a pair of floor glasses suspended from his neck had been shattered and a gaping hole in the wall gave evidence that the shell had hit less than six feet from the window where he had been seated.

Moynohan Not To Run Third Time

Education Board Head Announces Intention To Retire From Board

TWO SEEK ELECTION

Philip O. Moynohan, president of the town of Mamaroneck Board of Education today announced his intention of retiring from the board when his present term expires this year.

Declaring that his business responsibilities have increased markedly during the last year, Mr. Moynohan said he has decided to continue to give as much time to his business as he can, and to see my way clear to be a candidate for reelection.

Mr. Moynohan is completing his second term on the board, having been elected in 1940. It has been a real pleasure to have the honor of representing the town of Mamaroneck, his statement continues.

"I have enjoyed the association with my fellow board members, the work has been most interesting and I am glad to have had the opportunity to become acquainted with the personnel of our school system and with the parent-teacher associations. It is with regret that I leave my connection with the Board of Education."

Mr. Moynohan holds the post of general appraisal engineer for the New York Telephone Co. He is a veterinarian at St. John's Episcopal Church.

The election of two candidates was held at the Mamaroneck High School on March 11. Mr. Harold Hughes, who will run for reelection, and Walter F. Bready, who will be a candidate for reelection, were elected.

Petitions of nomination, signed by at least 25 qualified voters of the district, were filed with the clerk by April 11.

Pfc. Mignarri's Battery Cited By Gen. Patton

Pfc. Armando J. Mignarri of Larchmont is a member of a Battery stationed in France with a Ninth Air Defense Command Unit

Recently commended for conspicuous bravery by Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, commanding general of the Third Army. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Mignarri of Larchmont, N. Y.

The commendation read in part: "These actions were met by the gun crews with typical American fortitude, each man displaying conspicuous bravery. Defending the field with rapidly developed and extremely effective fire, these units destroyed four enemy aircraft and badly damaged four others. The heroic performance of these units is in keeping with the best traditions of the service."

Pfc. Mignarri, overseas since January, 1944, entered the service the previous year, and trained at Camp Pendleton, Calif., and at Camp Bowie, Tex. He was employed as a landscape gardener in civilian life. His brother, Pfc. Adelino Mignarri is stationed in Alaska.

Gen. Patton's commendation had reference to an attack on Jan. 15, 1945 by twenty-five German fighters which attempted to strafe the Ninth Air Force fighter strip somewhere in France. The field was protected in part by gun batteries of the attacking fighters were destroyed and four others were badly damaged.

McLain Visions Four Changes In Education

Four changes which will be secondary in the field of education are being described yesterday by Joseph C. McLain, principal of the Larchmont Rotary Club by the Mamaroneck Senior High School.

Mr. McLain introduced the subject by pointing out that, of the 100,000 boys and young men in the armed forces, 67 per cent have attended high school, whereas in the first year of the war only 40 per cent had received formal schooling beyond the 8th grade.

The first change Mr. McLain mentioned is the need for a more practical education. He said that the present education is too theoretical and that it should be more practical and more closely related to the needs of the community.

The second change is the need for a more flexible curriculum. He said that the present curriculum is too rigid and that it should be more flexible and more adaptable to the needs of the individual student.

The third change is the need for a more comprehensive education. He said that the present education is too narrow and that it should be more comprehensive and more inclusive of the various fields of knowledge.

The fourth change is the need for a more practical education. He said that the present education is too theoretical and that it should be more practical and more closely related to the needs of the community.

The fifth change is the need for a more flexible curriculum. He said that the present curriculum is too rigid and that it should be more flexible and more adaptable to the needs of the individual student.

The sixth change is the need for a more comprehensive education. He said that the present education is too narrow and that it should be more comprehensive and more inclusive of the various fields of knowledge.

The seventh change is the need for a more practical education. He said that the present education is too theoretical and that it should be more practical and more closely related to the needs of the community.

The eighth change is the need for a more flexible curriculum. He said that the present curriculum is too rigid and that it should be more flexible and more adaptable to the needs of the individual student.

The ninth change is the need for a more comprehensive education. He said that the present education is too narrow and that it should be more comprehensive and more inclusive of the various fields of knowledge.

LET US HAVE PEACE

At no time during the entire war can there be a more propitious occasion upon which the hearts of men may dwell with longing for permanent peace among the nations of the world than during the celebration of the Resurrection of Him who sought nearly 2,000 years ago to bring peace on earth to men of good will.

At first glance it might seem ironic that in the very midst of the most deadly carnage this globe ever has witnessed, when every effort of the so-called civilized world is strained against its enemies, there should arise a call for peace. And yet this is the very thing which we should most earnestly heed.

Some will ask why, under these circumstances, we demand of our enemies unconditional surrender, why easier terms which would be more immediate capitulation by them are not offered, with consequent saving of lives and suffering.

As a Soldier Sees It—
Determination of the form which any international peace organization should take must necessarily depend upon the point of view of the American fighting man who made peace possible.

It is not that we are not for peace, but that we are for a peace which is based upon the principles of justice and equity.
